Moore-Cordray.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Cor-dray of Stewart's Run when their daughter Miss Delia was united in marriage to Mr. Earle Moore, Rev. I. A. Barnes of Fairmont being the officiating minister, he having united the brides father and mother 33 years ago. The bride was becomingly attired in a white slik trimmed in lace and chif-fon. Her going away gown was a blue jacket suit. The house was beautiful-ly decorated with chrysanthemums and Autumn leaves. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Cordray and children, Edward and James of Morgantown, Mr. William Barb of Hoodsville, Mr. John Cordray, Miss Elizabeth Cordray, Miss Sarah Lough and Miss Jessie Cordray. The bride is a popular young lady of Arnettsville taking an active part in the church and Sunday school work.

FAIRMONT, W. Va. October 7 Editor The West Virginian:]—In the edition of The West Virginian of September 11th there was printed an article against Woman's Suffrage prepared by me in which I used the fol-ginian printed a letter purporting to have been written by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, referring to my arti-cle, in which she in part says: "It seems impossible that any human being in this country should be so ill-informed as to write such slanderous untruth, or that any reader would believe it."

Also, "The suffrage movement never whoever says aught to the contrary not only tells a wanton untruth but defames the character of the best men and women this county has known for a quarter of a century In the edition of the West Virginian of October 5th. an article is published under the name of Alice Stone Blackwell calling on me to give to the pub-lic the proof of publication and circulation of such literature. This, I respectfully submit, entitles me to re-

I am not engaged in any mudslinging controversy, nor am I defaming the character of any one, as they would have the public believe. But what I am trying to do is to strip the suffrage question of its veiled persuasions, and show the emotional, irrational and so-called forensic thought of its platform orators and representatives, on home church and state, when not engaged in a foreign state in a contest of "Votes for Women."

Her husband, is, according to feminism, the persuasions, therefore, would compel wives to compete with husbands in business and industry. It would make marriage a farce and the beme, as we know it, a thing of the past." (page 23.)

"There is no differences," says Rabbil Joseph Silverman, "between woman suffrage, socialism, and the present feminist movement. The one means the other, and no matter which cause whis first disaster to matrimony and I am not engaged in any mudsling-

In this connection I am reminded that before the anti-suffragists made a single speech in this county the suffragists published and circulated, suffragists published and circulated, in order to first create a feeling of prejudice among the people, a sterotyped and boiler plate statement, prepared in advance for general use in all states, now followed by declarations of platform ora ors, to the effect, pamphlet attacking marriage and characterizing wifehood as a species of slavery, says: public questions, are suported by com-binations of vice and the liquor in-terests, which they then knew, and now know, to be "a slanderous untruth," using her language. They for-got, however, to state that many women in wet states, who get their mo-ney from the sale of ale and spiritous liquors, are spending it for the pro-motion of suffrage and the hastening of feminism of feminism.

If this controversy demonstrates any one thing very clearly it is the length to which we may expect women to go in misrepresenting and villifying those who oppose them in politics. But when they enter into political life and assail private citizens they are no longer entitled to the full measure of that rule of chivalry and ethics pre-that rule of chivalry and ethics prevailing among gentlemen—never to dispute their word—and must suffer the pangs of the shafts of truth when pointed in their direction.

It was Richard Olney, the great statesman, who said, that public opinion rules in a great county like ours. That it brings about the enactment of laws and their enforcement, and if enacted without the support of public opinion they are a dead letter.

The mission of Mrs. Hale and Dr. Shaw in West Virginia, at this time.

Shaw in West Virginia, at this time, is one of vote getting, as representatives of the National Woman Suffrage tives of the National Woman Suffrage Association, and not an explanation of their views on marriage, divorce, home and state, when moulding public opinion into law. Therefore, we must look to the doctrines for which they stand when not within our state on vote getting tours, but engaged in attempting to influence the public mind to their way of thinking on other subjects affecting the basic principles or home and government.

Dr. Anna Shaw is advertised as the state of the state of Honorary President of the National American Woman Suffrage Associa-tion, now touring West Virginia in the present contest, involving a public question, and we have a perfect right to analyze her views on such questions as mariage, home, state and church which she is attempting to have our people adopt for their government.

I need no further justification of my language than to refer to U. S. Sena-torial Document No. 408, dated April 17, 1916, 64th Congress, 1st Session. page 22-3, and used as a Public Docu-ment, that radical Socialists and Feminists like Charlotte Perkins Gilman-Inez Millholland Bossevein, Winifred Harper Cooley, and Max Eastman, "are engaged as speakers on Suffrage platforms," and their most radical feministic and socialistic utterances are "published, advertised and sent broad cast by the National Woman Suffrage Association as arguments for votes for women," and that such docagainst nature and chirstian morals In other words freelove." (page 23.)

Mrs. Hale is quoted as saying. (page 24) that "Woman Suffrage is an essential branch of faminism."

"Feminism," she says in her book on the subject. "is gradually supply-ing to women the things they most need." And among these things she mentions is easy divorce and economic independence. Easy divorce, as feminists explain it, is divorce at will. It would permit a wife to cast off her husband and take another without consulting the courts. Economic in-dependence is the heory that wives must engage in gainful occupations outside the home in order to be independent. For a wife to be suported by her husband, is, according to feminism, to be a parasite. Feminism.

"Bondswomen" was printed and cir-culated as a campaign document by the National Woman Suffrage Associ-

Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett, formerly an officer of the National Woman Suffrage association, and now on hte Board of Directors of the "Birth Control League," a race suicide erganiza-tion recently organized in New York City, says that "It is unwholesome for any woman to be supported by man." (page 25.)

According to this theory the husband must cease to be the provider and the wife cease to be the homemaker;

Every woman will be a law into her-self. To substantiate my statements I refer to the leading spokeswomen of the feminist movement, i. e., Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Ellen. Key. Emma Goldman, Mrs. C. G. Hartley and the Bernard Shaw and Ibsen."
